

American Animal Hospital Association

St. George's University's student chapter of the American Animal Hospital Association (AAHA) was introduced in Fall 2002. The club promotes the ideals of this well-known association through informative lectures, hands-on wet labs, and up-to-date demonstrations by qualified veterinarians with concentration on practical small animal care. AAHA offers free national membership for all veterinary students, plus many more benefits. It is proud to be one of AAHA's largest and most active student chapters with over 70 percent student membership within the SVM.