

Exotics And Wildlife Society

The Exotics and Wildlife Society works to increase veterinary knowledge and experience with unique, non-traditional animals for all levels of veterinary students at St. George's University. The organization focuses specifically on providing opportunities for student learning in the areas of avian, laboratory animal, marine, reptile, wildlife, and zoo medicine. By working with a wide variety of excellent faculty and visiting professors, it is able to offer students lectures, hands-on wet laboratories, and other activities focusing on these diverse categories of veterinary medicine.
