

LAMS 548 : Introduction to Livestock Nutrition

Livestock nutrition is included in the veterinary curriculum to aid students in understanding the relationship between nutrients in feeds and the health of livestock including equids. It provides a basic perspective of how nutrition is adapted for production/performance characteristics and provides and understanding of abnormalities that may arise during that process.

Core Course

Credits 1