

BUSI 853 : Emerging World

This Residency lays the foundation for the Creating healthcreating wealth for people, organizations, society and the natural environment concept which serves as SGU's foundation for developing healthy, societies, organizations, and leaders. Participants examine the global context for creating healthy organizations in the emerging world. Students are motivated to develop a personal leadership credo and development plan for the program by answering the question. "Why would someone follow you?". this course provides the insights needed to successfully build and lead healthy organizations

Core Course