

BIOL 420 : Capstone I

This capstone course will allow students to develop an independent enquiry-based research project where students apply the knowledge and skills acquired throughout their program, while being mentored by a faculty member. Students will be tasked with formulating a research question and testable hypotheses, review relevant literature, develop a research design and methods, and present a written and oral research design to a committee.

Core Course