

POLI 331 : Political Geography

In general terms, the course will consider broad areas of investigation. The difference between state, country and nation. The relationship between a Government and its people; states including trade and international treaties; and the influence of political power on geographical space.

Core Course