SSCI 202 : Intro to Empirical Research

The course introduces students to philosophical and methodological foundations of empirical research. The knowledge and skills they gain prepare them to be more critical consumers of research information at school, home in the workplace, and community.
Core Course