

The Basic Sciences Dean's Council

The Basic Sciences Dean's Council is chaired by the senior associate dean of basic sciences and is comprised of the basic sciences department chairs. The Council meets 6 times a year. This council is an advisory body to the senior associate dean of basic sciences regarding the basic sciences program. It also discusses non-curricular issues including student advising, the learning environment, and faculty development.