

Placement Tests

The School of Arts and Sciences requires students to take English and Math Placement Tests. Placement Tests are offered once per semester in the week before teaching begins.

The English Placement Test is designed to assess the level of reading and writing skills of students who have not been assigned potential transfer credits for College English I (ENGL 107), so that they can be placed in appropriate courses.

The Math Placement Test is designed to assess the levels of computation, data analysis, and problem-solving skills of students who have not been assigned potential transfer credits for College Math (MATH 120).