

COMP 405 : Information Technology Project

This course requires students are to solve a real-world information system problem using project management and information systems methodologies and techniques acquired throughout the Information Technology degree program. On completion of the first semesters the students are to provide the following deliverables (a) Project proposal (b) Systems requirements specifications (c) System design specifications At the end of the second semester the students are required to produce the following: (a) a fully functional information System (b) present the entire project write up(c) Present project.

Core Course