

SSCI 411 : Empirical Research Project

Within the 16-week period the course, participants design and implement a research project continually engage in class discussions about the process. Special attention is given to the use of experimental and quasi-experimental designs and their application in psycho-social research.

Core Course